BEING A PRINCESS IS NO FAIRYTALE

Hilarious party princess web-series Crowned announces its much-anticipated launch date for August 15th, along with its official trailer release online. After a highly successful Kickstarter campaign, the new series is now raising additional funds to help it gain momentum and become an Internet sensation.

SHOW SYNOPSIS

Macey Edwards is being evicted from her apartment and needs to find a job quick. Her best friend and veteran Party Princess, Vianka Butterfield, recognizes her princess potential and connects her with a job as a Party Princess. Weird bosses, strange customers, and unforgiving children make being a professional Party Princess dreadful. Will the Princesses survive?

Inspired by the lead actress, Brianne Sanborn's real life experience. Crowned is executive-produced by the married actor duo, Josh Bednarsky and Brianne Sanborn under I Found Kitty Productions in association with Usher Morgan and Digital Magic Entertainment. The series also stars comedian Drew Droege (Amy Poehler's Freak Dance, 'Chloe Sevigny' online videos) rising star Megan Heyn (Browsers, Freak Dance) and Veronica Mannion.

INDIEGOGO CAMPAIGN

After funding production costs on Kickstarter, writing, producing and shooting "Crowned", Josh Bednarsky, an independent producer, director and actor, is preparing to launch his new web series this coming August. With big plans for promotion, a PR campaign and even a pitch to some prime time networks, Bednarsky and his wife Brianne are back to crowd-funding, this time for publicity funds. In a video on the project's Indiegogo page, potential supporters get a sneak peek into the show's original style and comedic rhythm. Bednarsky and Sanborn are offering funny stickers, posters, DVDs, mugs, shirts, credits and even Princess Parties as rewards for those who contribute to their project.
